Gerflor reserves the right to change any one of the articles of these rules, such as the date of the award announcement.

Gerflor undertakes to inform the contestants of any changes to the date of the awards announcement as soon as possible so that new arrangements may be made.

Article 15. Acceptance of the rules

Participation in the Gerflor Job Reference Award implies full acceptance of these conditions.

Any breach of any of these conditions by contestants will result in the exclusion of the corresponding entry from the Gerflor Job Reference Award.

Article 16. Copyright

Each contestant transfers all copyright (pictures) regarding the reference entered for the Contest to Gerflor and this, for the duration of the copyright.

The Contest winner and contestants that have been awarded prizes under the conditions of article 13 transfer their copyright to GERFLOR for a period of 10 years worldwide as from the date of sending their pictures.

This transfer in particular includes the right for GERFLOR to exclusively use the pictures of contestants and their images in advertising messages, in the media and for any promotional event, without this use entitling the contestants to any remuneration.

Contestants are reminded that GERFLOR exclusively holds intellectual property rights over all logos, brand names, domain names and, more generally, all designs protected by intellectual/industrial property rights used in the organisation of the Contest.

Subsequently, reproduction and representation by contestants of all or part of these elements outside of cases authorised by these rules is exclusively prohibited.

All contestants guarantee GERFLOR that they are the sole holder of the copyright attached to the content sent to it in relation to the Contest and that they have not introduced any reproduction or reminiscence likely to breach the rights of third parties. If contestants present a creation involving one or more recognisable people as its main subject, they must have first obtained their written agreement and, if the subject is a minor, written authorisation of both parents or legal representative.

If contestants propose a photograph, representing a place, setting or monument that requires authorisation for use, they must have first obtained the written agreement of the relevant person/authorities.

Subsequently, contestants guarantee GERFLOR against any recourse from third parties regarding a breach of intellectual property rights or rights relating to personality, against any claim, liability proceedings, damages, losses or expenditure (including legitimate legal costs) caused by or related to the breach of any of the guarantees or undertakings provided by virtue of these rules.
